THE HISTORY

Ardencote was originally built in 1863, as the dowry house for Mary the daughter of Thomas Phillips, a wool manufacturer from Manchester. After the 1st World War, the Phillips family sold Ardencote to Mr. James Booth. Under Mr. Booth's ownership, Ardencote flourished. James Booth died in 1937 and his family decided to sell the property to Mr. Tom Brown, an Irish financier who farmed the land until his death in 1980.

Fast forward to now, Ardencote is owned and managed by Mr. Huckerby- a truly independent, family-run hotel, thriving against all the odds in an environment increasingly dominated by homogenous hotel chains. Mr. Huckerby has added financial stability and entrepreneurial expertise to the hotel, which now proudly boasts 110 four star bedrooms, 18 conference and banqueting suites and two award winning, rosetted restaurants. The leisure facilities have been recently updated to include indoor and outdoor swimming pools, squash courts, floodlit tennis courts, cardiovascular and free weights gym and a dance studio, as well as an 18 hole golf course.
